THEODORE ROOSEVELT ONLINE CYCLOPEDIA CREATED BY NEWMEDIA PUBLISHING

Theodore Roosevelt's Cyclopedia, Gubernatorial Papers and speeches have been converted into an online web book from The Theodore Roosevelt Centennial Gubernatorial CD by Newmedia Publishing. The CD was created by the company for the Theodore Roosevelt Association, the State of New York and the National Park Service to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's governorship of New York State.

Park Ridge, NJ -- May 21, 2004 -- NewMedia Publishing announced today that it has created the online version of the Theodore Roosevelt Centennial Gubernatorial CD-ROM for the Theodore Roosevelt Association. This web edition is now on the association's web site for everybody interested in learning more about TR's achievements, listening to speeches delivered by him, or using quotes from his works.

This web edition includes the Theodore Roosevelt Cyclopedia, last published in 1989 and two volumes of TR's gubernatorial papers, Public Papers of Theodore Roosevelt, Governor 1899 and Public Papers of Theodore Roosevelt, Governor 1900, both of them published 100 years ago. There are only a few copies left of these books, which are very important in understanding not only TR's years as Governor of New York but also his entire career and his philosophy of life and government. The Cyclopedia gives Roosevelt's thoughts and opinions in his own words, alphabetically and by subject, and contains well over 4000 quotations. Four speeches from Edison's original cylinder recordings are also part of this edition.

Steven Kingsley, who managed this project for Newmedia Publishing, states:

"We were given a very demanding task: To preserve the original layout of the Cyclopedia and Theodore Roosevelt's Gubernatorial Papers in the online editions. By achieving this historical "look and feel," the online web book edition presents TR's works and achievements as they were published over a hundred years ago. Now anyone with Internet access can see, learn, and listen to him at any time."

Newmedia Publishing offers the most cost effective solutions to convert thousands to millions of paper documentation and computer files into fully searchable electronic documents and online libraries. They are easily managed, distributed, and accessed on PCs, networks, company intranets or the Internet. The company's highly economical document conversion services and online library systems are designed to meet the operational, ease-of-use and bottom line objectives of clients like the Theodore Roosevelt Association, the State of New York, and the National Park Service.

The Theodore Roosevelt Association was established in 1920 by an act of Congress, to preserve and promote the works and ideals of TR. It is located in Oyster Bay, Long Island, NY. It's web site is at www.theodoreroosevelt.org.

Newmedia Publishing, through its web site at www.newmediapublishing.com, turns the knowledge assets and creative works of its clients and authors into valuable digital and print properties, distributed and sold by its network of online stores, download sites, affiliates and other partners.

The company can be reached by telephone at 201 444-5051, through its web site, by e-mail and at its offices, located at 31 Franklin Turnpike, Waldwick, NJ 07463 USA.
