A new version of the PC Software Radiotracker allows to listen easily to the music from Internet radio stations while recording it from up to 98 stations via fast internet DSL connection

Karlsruhe, April 19, 2005. RapidSolution has published the Radiotracker Version 1.4 on its websitehttp://www.radiotracker.de. Radiotracker downloads music tracks from the Internet for music lovers legally. Its easy operation was already often awarded internationally. Radiotracker is the only German-speaking Software providing the possibility to record fully automatically tracks from more than 8,000 Internet radio stations.

Enhanced convenience
What is completely new is the handling of the Internet radio stations according to the so called Drag & Drop principle; the user selects the radio stations from a list with the mouse and enables them by dragging and dropping them to the recording window. New is also the advanced adding procedure for more Internet radio stations. The way of creating and selecting your own favorites was also extended. Switching the stations while listening until the new station can be heard was also reduced to some fractions of seconds only. Another new function is the selective saving function of favorite artists through improved filtering options. Instead of 19, Radiotracker now categorizes 8,000 radio stations to 77 music genres.

Alternative to illegal music swapping services and online purchases
Within only a few hours or days, Radiotracker records several hundreds or even thousands of tracks in MP3-format via DSL-Internet access. Without copy protection mechanisms (so called Digital Rights Management) the recorded tracks can be played back easily on classical MP3 Players in contrast to purchased music. Radiotracker users thus avoid paying the purchase price which has to be paid for tracks from Musicload, Napster or iTunes. Radiotracker is a real alternative to illegal swapping services, since the recording of Internet radio stations delivers much more music files in short time.
