Free Website Hosting for Small Business means business just got cheaper and easier

Brisbane, Queensland - October 20, 2005 - Sales Champions announces the launch of a new small business website, which will slash costs with free webhosting for small and micro businesses. The new Treasure Chest website will include free webhosting as part of the membership and will give access to thousands of dollars worth of sales, marketing and business tools and information at only cents a day.

"Helping small business people to get the sales and marketing tools and advice is critical for business survival," said Dennis McMahon, co-founder of Sales Champions, "and we've found a way to include free webhosting with the service. Unbelievably, some people are paying $20, $40 and up to $100 a month for website hosting - and let's face it, webhosting really is a very cheap commodity".

Narelle Stratford, Sales Champions co-founder said, "Small business is, as always, under the hammer. With new tax and industrial relations laws coming into being seemingly every second day, most small business people struggle just to deal with their day-to-day clients. What many want is a "guiding hand" - someone who can give them the advice and help they really need. But the cost of coaches and consultants is a killer."

Up till now, that is. The new Treasure Chest site will enable small and micro business owners to get free webhosting, plus the latest sales, marketing and business tools, systems and programs for less per day than most now pay for the newspaper. And, in line with the upswing in small business websites, Sales Champions has found another way to cut small business costs – by providing free website hosting as part of the new Treasure Chest.

Surviving and succeeding in small business is about getting (and doing) more with less. To find out more about the Small Business Treasure Chest, go to:
