

"Chronicles of a Mr. Mom" offers free publishing for Moms - and Mr.Moms

BabyNamesIndia.com is offering free publishing space for writers - especially Mr. Moms - who want to share their experiences, emotions and joys of parenting. Up-and-coming as well as experienced writers will find this free platform a welcome new channel to spread their thoughts and opinions.

Westchester, NY (PRWEB) February 13, 2006 -- BabyNamesIndia.com (<http://www.BabyNamesIndia.com>) has launched a new blog, "Chronicles of a Mr. Mom", and is soliciting content from moms and dads with a flair for writing - in the form of personal experiences, anecdotes, thoughts, opinions and tips - especially from "Mr.Moms" - whether they are stay-at-home dads who have sacrificed their careers to care for their little ones, or working fathers who go the extra mile to make sure their children get enough love and attention.

BabyNamesIndia.com, originally launched in 1998 with the simple goal of publishing Indian baby names online to help the Indian community living in the United States and abroad, has since grown to include content geared specifically towards expecting women, couples and parents.

"What better way to build a warm community of parents, than giving regular moms and dads a soapbox for expressing the joys of parenting, without them having to worry about the technicalities or the costs involved in building and maintaining a web site", says Ravi Jayagopal, the founder and developer.

The site is also welcoming other writers who have content about pregnancy and parenting. Budding writers will benefit from the instant exposure to a highly focused community, while experienced writers will relish this new channel to further their brand beyond their existing readers.

BabyNamesIndia.com will not be charging any publishing fees and plans on supporting publishing costs through online ads.
