

Executive Blueprints Inc Celebrates The Institute For Advanced Leadership With A Limited Time Promotion, On-Line Courses Under $10

The Institute For Advanced Leadership contains a library of courses that deliver short and easy “real world” solutions as tutorials. These blueprints for success are powerful tools for Organizational Development Specialists, Human Resource Departments, New Managers and upwardly mobile individuals preparing for promotion. For a limited time, courses and workbooks are being offered direct for under $10.

Aliso Viejo, CA (PRWEB) March 21, 2006 -- The Institute For Advanced Leadership delivers powerful and easy lessons for trainers and self-improvement. Continuous education just became more effective and more affordable.

Executive Blueprints Inc (www.ExecutiveBlueprints.com) utilizes short and focused training modules to augment organizational development. The courses have been applied effectively in strategic business plans, consulting, executive coaching and Human Capital development. These modules have also been used as interactive tutorials in seminars and workshops.

In response to popular demand, Executive Blueprints is modifying the workshop courses for the public and to other consultants, trainers and coaches on-line at www.InstituteForAdvancedLeadership.com . This effort supports the advancement of professional services and personal development.

“When the workshops were announced we were shocked by the overwhelming international response,” said John Mehrmann. “People who could not attend the workshops were interested in the topics. Now the materials are being revised to accommodate self-paced study and for use by regional trainers.”

Time is Money, with no time to waste and very little time to spare these courses are designed for maximum impact, minimum interruption and affordable costs. Designed as the perfect companion for the average lunch break, the Institute for Advanced Leadership is offering the initial courses for a limited time at under $10 each. These prices and the time to take the courses are equivalent to a typical business lunch.

The courses are designed by experienced business professionals with emphasis on providing “real world” easy to apply examples. Each course contains a self-paced tutorial presentation with solutions and examples. Each presentation is accompanied by a companion guide workbook that can be printed and used to take individual notes, complete exercises and personalize the lessons for maximum impact.

“Textbook examples only go so far,” said Maggie Merante, corporate training specialist. “The most powerful thing about the workbooks is that it gives each person the ability to apply the material to his or her own unique situation. People don’t want meaningless equations; they want fast and simple solutions.”

The current library of materials includes Interview Skills for Employers, How to Create Job Descriptions and Standards of Performance, Managing Change, Essential Elements for Effective Marketing, and Customer Loyalty in Sales. Additional titles and topics have already been developed for release next month.

For a limited time, Executive Blueprints is also offering a free copy of the Resume Design Instructions Guide, with course presentation, workbook and sample Template. This free sample is an opportunity to try the process of using the self-paced self-improvement presentation and companion guide workbook. The Resume

Design Instructions is a useful guide for college students preparing to use www.Monster.com , www.CareerBuilder.com, www.Resume.com, www.job.com, www.execglobalnet.com or similar on-line services. It is also useful for seasoned professionals who are reentering the job market and preparing to work with recruiters or headhunters.

Executive Blueprints is in the business of business, helping individuals and organizations succeed by providing consulting, coaching and training for fast paced professionals. “We cooperate and provide referrals with other consultants, coaches and trainers,” said John Mehrmann. “But there are many more individuals and organizations that would like easy and affordable assistance. These simplified copies of our training materials are intended to make it easy for people to help themselves.”
