These strengths, added to a large sales network and the expanded geographic coverage of ProSoft, will improve our ability to provide innovative services to more customers while returning substantial value to our stakeholders and improving our growth profile."

The new company will be more innovative, efficient, and customer-focused, providing benefits to customers by combining a strong sales engine and heightened attention to service with award-winning products. As a result, the combined company will be better able to respond to the demanding and varied needs of the small and mid-sized business software marketplace.
