Phoenix, AZ (PRWEB) May 2, 2006 -- A brand new website invites people in the Phoenix, Arizona area to gain free information and to deal with the issues that lead to foreclosure. www.brucevoris.com provides local help, solid information, strategies and tips. Site visitors are invited to form a personal relationship with a Phoenix area foreclosure expert to help them with their foreclosure so they can move on to a brighter future.

As a long-time Phoenix resident himself, founder of the website Bruce Voris has extensive real estate experience as an investor, business owner and realtor, and now focuses on working with families facing foreclosure. He is a trusted member of the National Association of Foreclosure Prevention Professionals, which adheres to a strict code of ethics. "About 500 families a month in Maricopa County are being foreclosed upon and that number is growing. I created this website to provide a high quality and ethical source of important information to the many families who urgently need it." Bruce says.

People not facing foreclosure will also find useful information on the website, including topics on preventing foreclosure and facts, strategies and tips that would be useful for friends and family who may be facing foreclosure and urgently need the information. Site visitors will get regularly updated information and statistics, foreclosure news, legislation alerts and real estate information pertaining to the Phoenix, Arizona area.

Site creator Bruce Voris posts new foreclosure information regularly to keep Phoenix, Arizona area residents informed on the ever-changing foreclosure process and legislation. More importantly, Bruce Voris gives personal support and hope to people facing foreclosure. Typical testimonials are "Our experience with (Bruce) was amazing.
