Find Your Possibility: The Journey is not just a movie, it's a movement. Another "Best Website Design 2006" winner for US Digital Partners from CoolHomePages.com.

August 2, 2006 – More than ten years ago, a man and his dog set out on an adventure that evolved into a career and an inspiration for others.

As Eric Saperston traveled the U.S. talking to people who had experienced life and were willing to share what they had learned, he decided to put these teachings on film. Over the years, others have joined him on his journey, and together they've not only produced an award-winning film, they've ignited a movement.

And now they are continuing their journey and heading in a new direction. As they continue to encourage others through entertaining stories of wisdom, humor, and inspiration, they now do that through speaking engagements at events, conferences, and workshops.

In deciding on this new course, the team members at Journey Productions realized they needed an Internet strategy to complement this next phase of their journey. That's where US Digital Partners entered the picture. US Digital has been doing more and more web design work for the film industry, so they were a logical choice to work with Journey Productions. And in typical fashion, US Digital put together a powerful website, www.TheJourneyFilm.com, that is helping Journey Productions reach their new markets. This dynamic design is another "Best Website Design 2006" winner for US Digital Partners from CoolHomePages.com.

According to Patrick Jones, Executive Vice President of Journey Productions, they've been extremely pleased and grateful with all that US Digital has done for them. "The leadership team at US Digital knows digital strategy and how to bring the right technologies to bear for our current and future needs. They have helped us see all of the opportunities clearly and focus our efforts in the right direction. We are making every effort to capitalize on the ground swell movement this film has created. US Digital did a great job rolling out what we needed in the amount of time we had to get it done.”

Between the interactive experience that the US Digital team has and the Partners’ belief in what the folks at Journey Productions are doing, you have the recipe for a perfect partnership. “It’s been a joy working with the crew at Journey Productions to design TheJourneyFilm.com,” said David Brecount, a partner at US Digital. “Their projects are inspiring and their spirit is contagious. All our web design and interactive marketing efforts will help keep the journey going for years to come.”
