

Revolutionizing the Script Development Process

About LitCentral

LitCentral is a software company dedicated to improving the efficiency of script management and the quality of script analysis and coverage; unleashing benefits for screenwriters, production companies and studios, and ultimately the viewing public.

We have employed the latest in software technology to create a Web-based and desktop workflow management system that is costeffective and easy to use.

If you read and analyze creative works such as screenplays, treatments, synopses, etc., our patent-pending coverage analysis software will streamline the development of these creative works into finished products.

Our software is not only downloaded onto your hard drive, but also communicates directly with the Internet. This allows you to access anytime and anywhere.

Improving Coverage

LitCentral's efficient workflow and "rubric-based" script evaluation system is innovative yet practical. Writers electronically submit scripts into a secure network, with restricted access, for studios, production companies and agencies.

Provides line and bar graph interpretations of a script dramatically decreasing ambiguous feedback.

Enables simultaneous reading and coverage creation, and increases reader productivity by up to 50%.

Creates an interactive experience between writers and executives. Provides detailed feedback to writers and eliminates guesswork as to a screenplay's strengths and weaknesses.
