Review by Guy Adams

Peter Grasso has forayed into uncharted territory with his book "In God We Betrayed". In God We Trust has fallen by the wayside. No doubt Peter is going to take some hits for the stances he took. I stand solidly behind him.

Nevertheless, the work touched me deeply. As former CWA leader Sandy Rios said at the Gay Games in Chicago recently "Personal repentance must come before change on a national level." He makes the point up front that first and foremost we must be assured of a connection between ourselves and the Lord Jesus Christ. Beyond that, all else is futile. Without a correct moral compass aligned with God's precept, it is almost hopeless to expect America to realize the depths unto which she has fallen.

He makes the point that the 1947 ruling regarding the separation of church and state is nowhere to be found in our Constitution. We have been hijacked! Early in the book he makes the same points that David Gibbs III does in his book "One Nation Under God", namely, that all but three of the founding fathers that wrote our Constitution were Christian believers.

To any right thinking historian not embracing revisionist history, this is a matter of public record, as Mr. Grasso points out. Liberals apparently go to great lengths to disguise the true nature of our beginnings. Mr. Grasso points out that the National Education Association has been trying, with some success, to hijack the proper education of our youth, trying to demonize the Judeo-Christian values of our ancestors, who were overwhelmingly Christian.

He quotes many Founding Fathers, who decidedly said, and for the public record, that they were "Christian" and believed that apart from continuing to be a Christian nation, we would cease to be a force for good for our own citizens and for the world at large.

Mr. Grasso also criticizes the Church in America at large, and this might upset some readers. But consider that if the “Silent Majority” had not been so silent over the last couple of decades, we could have changed the face of our nation. We could have halted the ultra-Liberals, secular humanist, and the ACLU in their tracks. Is it too late? Mr. Grasso thinks not, and I heartily agree with him. But we must be informed (as his book more than adequately does) and we must also act, and his book more than properly motivates the populace. If you're discouraged, this book will restore your faith in God and in His grand design for America ; but only if you're willing to get involved.

Grasso also points out how hypocritical it is for the Supreme Court, and other lesser courts, to open with prayer and yet still legislate God out of America . It may at one time looked like the right thing to do, all that nonsense about a mythical separation of church and state, but we are now helping ourselves out of the very thing that can help us -- God.

He also exposes the lies concerning evolution and the damage it has done to our children. His analysis is beyond reproach and is well documented and constructed. It will do great damage to the Left. Remove the one true moral compass and all else is moral relativism. Legislate God out of our lives and there is nothing else to guide us.

In God We Betrayed also exposes the ACLU, who in my opinion, is one of the worst organizations to ever have been naively embraced by the American people. We have been scammed. We have been taken hostage. We have come to a point in America today where we believe, as Grasso points out, that most sin has come to be embraced as “alternative lifestyles”.

All in all, In God We Betrayed is well worth your read.

The links Grasso makes between the downfall of our nation and its recent rejection of God and His laws are unmistakable. Even a cursory reading of God's precepts will illuminate and support Grasso's points. Reject God and His ordinations and our nation will suffer the inevitable consequences. We are not above God's authority. Like the law of gravity, even if you don't believe in it, ignore it at your own peril.

He concludes by showing how our nation can still repent (a politically incorrect word now days) and yet still be blessed by God. It is NOT too late. Grasso points out two verses to illustrate this:

Jeremiah 18:7-11, which says "The instant I speak concerning a nation and concerning a kingdom, to pluck up, to pull down, and to destroy it, if that nation against whom I have spoken turns from its evil, I will relent of the disaster that I thought to bring upon it. And the instant I speak concerning a nation and concerning a kingdom, to build and to plant it, if it does evil in My sight so that it does not obey My voice, then I will relent concerning the good with which I said I would benefit it."

2 Chronicles 7:14, which admonishes us that "If My people who are called by My name, will humble themselves, and pray and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land."

We therefore must:

1. Humble ourselves
2. Pray
3. Seek Him
4. Turn from our wicked ways

God is quite clear on this, as Grasso points out. There is hope. There is a way out for America . But it is God's way and none other.

But there is our hope only if we meet His conditions. We must meet Him on His terms and on His terms alone. He is the sole architect of the universe and we must rely on the owner's manual that we have all been provided with, the Bible. Grasso gives us some sorely needed information -- and information is power -- and he provides us with some practical and valuable solutions.

So, In God We Betrayed has the solution too, it's not all bad news, IF we repent individually and as a nation, God will heal our land. We have that promise from Him. Look how far the mighty has fallen. But also look at how long is God's arm to save.

Grasso has a collective prayer near the end of the book that I wholeheartedly endorse its application.

As told throughout the book, we have departed from God's ways and the concepts as laid out in our Constitution. We depart from them at our own peril. But we can humbly entreat God to be merciful and as we embrace His ways, the Lord of the universe will heal and restore our land.

That is the message of Peter Grasso's book "In God We Betrayed".

I sincerely recommend it to you. For your sake.
