New Trading Software Breaks 100 year Stock Market Trend

Martin Cole inventor of the PAT Trading Software has discovered how to beat the stock market regardless of market conditions. He says, "For more than 100 years the markets have been charted in the same way. The discovery of a four pointed triangle and the development of this into a charting method has literally thrust online trading into the 21st century"

A four-pointed triangle, itself a mathematical impossibility has revealed the true nature of the stock market. This discovery translated through to user level, means that a complete novice now has understanding of the stock market, and can profit from that understanding using the software.

"The huge growth in online trading in recent years has given instant access to thousands and yet left them poorly equipped to deal with the stream of market data." Said Cole. As one user expressed, "I felt like I was lost in a minefield until I discovered the PAT software, now at last I have the ability to make consistent profits"

The company produces live trading videos of the software in action most every morning, and can be viewed at

Not surprisingly, the PAT Software as an online trading solution is fast attracting a loyal, and growing user base, and is poised for rapid growth.
