JobOps Releases White Paper Documenting the Business Case for Integrated ERP and Job Management

JobOps White Paper Focuses on Challenges of Make-To-Order Manufacturers

Minneapolis, MN, April 10, 2007 — JobOps, a Job Management Software solution developed for Sage MAS 90 and Sage MAS 200 ERP systems, announced today that it has published a white paper documenting the business case for integrated ERP and Job Management. The white paper covers topics such as on-time delivery, profitability and the challenges that make-to-order manufacturers face in realizing operational effectiveness in the competitive manufacturing market. The paper also includes many real-life examples taken from JobOps' extensive client base of small to mid-sized manufacturing companies. The new white paper is available free of charge at its Web site at www.jobops.com.

According to Randy Stone, JobOps Director of Sales and Business Development, "In today's market, operational excellence is essential to success. Customers can pick and choose with whom they will do business. Even small errors can cause them to go looking for alternatives. To offer competitive pricing, organizations must have strong cost control measures and excellent visibility into profitability.

"A fully integrated software system that connects data in all aspects of the business, from accounting to sales to the shop floor, can give organizations the edge that differentiates them from the competition. Over the last two decades, business management software systems have steadily evolved and become both more capable and more affordable. Today, even small to mid-sized manufacturers can leverage an integrated system to enjoy greater profitability and enhanced customer satisfaction."
