Online Political Community Launched for African-Americans

Tampa, FL (PRWEB) August 15, 2007 -- BlackPoliticsontheWeb.com (BPOTW) is a new online community featuring timely political news & information geared towards the African-American community. Launched with the latest in Web 2.0 technology, BPOTW is the internet's premier destination for dialogue and discussions about policy & politics.

BPOTW features site polls, regularly updated news feeds, additional news stories from other media outlets throughout the country, and Behind the Lens – original BPOTW content. Becoming a member of the community is fast and free; members have access to user profiles, the BPOTW discussion forum, individual blogs, the ability to create and maintain their own community groups, site-wide buddylists, private messaging and more exciting features.

BPOTW offers the political news of the major media outlets, combined with the same engaging dialogue you can have with friends and family. Whether you are a Democrat, Republican, Libertarian, affiliated with another party, or unaffiliated with any party - BlackPoliticsontheWeb.com is the most comprehensive online political community for African-Americans.
