Cultural Conflict: In this chaotic 21st century, a war is being waged between "secular-progressives," and "fanatical fundamentalists" (both Christian and Muslim). Fertig gently guides readers through the maze of new scientific facts, past irrational theories, and current philosophical ideas that led us where we are today, offering multiple views on Science, History, Culture, Christianity and Islam from over seventy ancient wise men and contemporary scholars. The author doesn't shy away from controversy. Instead he encourages honest seekers of truth to "use their intelligence" to explore questions that trouble them in this century. "Faith and reason are not only compatible, but are essential for a fuller, richer spiritual life," the author concludes. This book answers 400 questions directly. It is for anyone who desires understanding of worldviews, greater peace, and desires to find real truth.

A NEW chapter on Islam & Christianity shows important theological, cultural, and historical differences, so that readers may better understand and appreciate where both sides are coming from. Muslims who live in free democratic countries, after considering these factual differences, might think about what Christianity offers.
