Analysis

Small business Web sites joined the WebAwards as a separate category in 2003 and have lagged the ISAR index in all years except 2003. They underperformed the 5-year criteria benchmark averages in all areas. As an industry, they are strongest in content and copywriting, but lag in innovation and technology.

Web sites allow even the smallest businesses to compete for customers on a global scale. Unfortunately, many of these businesses do not invest in having qualified professionals build and maintain their Web presence. The best small business Web sites can become business's number one source for new customers and they can service those customers very cost effectively.

About this Report

The Web Marketing Association has collected industry Web site development benchmark data since 1997 through its WebAward program. Multiple independent judges review and score each site from 0-10 points on each of seven criteria for a possible 70 points. Best of Industry WebAward is given to the site that scores highest in the industry. The views of this report are based on observations of aggregated industry data and do not reflect the results for any particular Web site unless noted.
