WASHINGTON, D.C., October 10, 2008 – Val Jones, M.D., award-winning writer and former Senior Medical Director of Revolution Health.com, launched a new health website today called, GetBetterHealth.com to provide accurate medical information in a trusted environment that's both educational and entertaining.

Dr. Jones' approach to health education allows her audience to learn about important health issues via short, easily digestible content segments through her blog, video and audio podcasts. The site will offer engaging interviews with medical experts and celebrities about important health topics. In addition, Dr. Jones creates weekly medical cartoons available through a free, RSS feed. Soon, GetBetterHealth.com will expand to offer information on quality, affordable medical products to help patients comply with prescribed care when they return home from the hospital.

Dr. Jones' new web site features a continuation of her previous blog at RevolutionHealth.com, "Dr. Val and the Voice of Reason," now called "Get Better with Dr. Val." The new site will host the official calendar for Grand Rounds, the weekly "hot list" of the most relevant health blog discussions on the Internet.

Dr. Jones' new medical blog is the first in a series of online medical and healthcare products and services that will be released over a variety of multi-media platforms by Better Health, PLLC, a partnership with Anerian, LLC.

"It's exciting to be working with Dr. Val, because she is so energetic and creative. Anerian has worked hard to rapidly launch her new venture." Said Marty Fisher, a founding partner at Anerian and former Chief Technology Officer at both AOL and Revolution Health.
