

LOVE Park is both funny and moving, and I enjoyed it tremendously.

—CHARLES BAXTER, author of National Book Award finalist The Feast of Love

A love letter to Philadelphia. The prose soars with joy and longing in this must-read debut.

—LARRY PLATT, editor-in-chief of Philadelphia magazine

A Greek-American The Graduate. This engrossing debut novel is also an ode to the city of Philadelphia, and a tribute to forgiveness and the power of brotherly love.

—ELENI N. GAGE, author of North of Ithaca

I have often wondered why we Greek Americans have not produced writers like the young Saul Bellow. I think we now have one.

—HELEN PAPANIKOLAS, author of The Time of the Little Black Bird

Born in Lancaster, PA, Jim Zervanos is a graduate of Bucknell University and the MFA Program for Writers at Warren Wilson College. His fiction has appeared in numerous publications, most recently in the Cimarron Review, Green Mountains Review, Chicago Quarterly, and Philly Fiction, a collection of short stories featuring Philadelphia writers. He lives with his wife in Philadelphia.

www.jimzervanos.com

