Arxis Technology Turns to CodePartners for Competitive Edge
CodePartners excels in .NET development and customizations

Dallas, TX – July 16, 2009 – Based on their approach of helping growing companies maximize their technology investment with the best available solution, Arxis Technology offers custom development services by CodePartners, a software development firm, to ensure a tailored fit.

Arxis Technology serves clients throughout greater Los Angeles, Orange County, Chicago, and Phoenix; and they represent a variety of products including Sage Accpac, Sage MAS 90, MAS 200, and MAS 500. Additionally, Arxis supports a number of end-to-end solutions such as human resources, CRM, warehouse management, and business intelligence for businesses in the distribution, manufacturing, service, and entertainment industries.

Businesses today often require customizations built onto their core product solutions to give them a competitive edge. "Even though we have a development group, we don't do a lot of this work internally," said David Cieslak, principal of Arxis Technology. "We have come to rely on and trust CodePartners to handle the majority of these opportunities for us."

CodePartners has completed a variety of projects for Arxis Technology. Project highlights include report automation, custom CRM screens, and .NET development projects tailored for the entertainment industry.

"I know that there are a lot of companies that do development work, but when we compare the quality, communication, and relationship we have with CodePartners to others, I could not imagine working with anyone else," said David. "We have gone places together that neither of our firms would have been able to go without the other."

"We appreciate the trust that Arxis Technology has in our team and our solutions," said Bin Feng, President of CodePartners. "We give their clients the same level of care, commitment, and communication they do. It is a great partnership."
