

The National Football Post (www.nationalfootballpost.com) will have three distinct Fantasy Football products during the 2009 football season. In addition to our Fantasy Draft Guide, the NFP will offer full service fantasy football leagues and a “NFP Total Access Pass” with everything you need to know to dominate all of your fantasy leagues. The National Football Post has partnered with Pro Bowl quarterback Drew Brees, who will serve as spokesman for the most “connected” fantasy football offering anywhere.

Draft Guide - $12.95

- Scouting Reports of nearly 400 players, discussing the strengths and weaknesses after hours of film study.
- Written by Michael Lombardi and Joe Fortenbaugh and Matt Bowen
- Cheat sheets – players rankings by position, as well as the “NFP’s Top 200 Big Board”
- Draft Strategy articles
- Historical Statistics Analysis
- Position by Position Breakdowns of what to look for
- Contract Year Player Analysis
- 2009 Sleepers & Busts
- Draft Value Charts
- Fantasy Expert’s Mock Draft – from at least six (6) industry experts.
- Live Chats and More!

NFP Total Access Pass $24.95

- Week by week analysis of player performance
- Start em sit ems for each week
- Player projections at each position
- Film/Scouting section with player break downs week by week by Joe Fortenbaugh and Michael Lombardi
- Questions answered by Joe Fortenbaugh
- Game Previews/Scouting Reports
- Live Chats
- Defensive Film Breakdowns from Matt Bowen: understanding different defenses.
- Weekly Busts – analysis of previous weeks underachievers
- Injury Analysis
- Much More!

NFP Draft Guide and NFP Total Access Pass Combo $32.95

Fantasy League $89.95

- Commissioner style league with Up to 30 teams per league
- Includes Free Draft Guide and NFP Total Access Pass for the commissioner
- Completely Customizable Rules, and Scoring Systems
- Detailed reports and rankings
- Exclusive General Manger Feature
- Live Scoring