

i wish all your wishes and mine

Renowned artist to release debut children's book

Internationally recognized painter Vaeta Zitman's I Wish All Your Wishes and Mine will be available in September at major online and brick-and-mortar bookstores.

Fort Lauderdale – August 6, 2009 – After sudden inspiration and a flurry of illustration, Venezuelan artist Vaeta Zitman is proud to publish I Wish All Your Wishes and Mine, to be released this fall by Tree Top Hen and distributed by Emerald Publishing.

The simple, yet profound story will be familiar to friends of all ages. In Vaeta's words, "It inspires the reader to wish for somebody else's wishes to come true, and I believe that is friendship." The book follows the fantastic journey of two friends, as well as an unblown dandelion that appears with them in many of the scenes.

Although a trained illustrator, Vaeta Zitman is thus far known mostly for her paintings, which have been displayed in museums and galleries across the U.S., including the Amsterdam Whitney Gallery and the Holter Museum of Art. The book is a stylistic departure from her paintings; its ornate and colorful images have the magic to transport the reader to the place where wishes come true.

Vaeta has plans for another book, but in the meantime remains quite occupied fulfilling the wishes of her two daughters.

Vaeta Zitman is a Venezuelan born artist. Her paintings show in major galleries in the USA. I Wish All Your Wishes and Mine is Vaeta's first book. She lives in Florida, is not very fond of alligators, thinks all medicines' side effects are meant for her and her favorite color is orangish-red.
