

When patients have an advocate, outcomes are better.
That's why there are Case Managers.

National Case Management Week is October 11 –17

Advocate, facilitator, champion, hero: it's all in a day's work for the Case Manager. That's because Case Managers do so much to help their patients. They assess, plan and coordinate care. They help unify the work of doctors, nurses, social workers and others. And they are a crucial link in helping their patients understand the care they're receiving. All of which makes National Case Management Week the perfect time to say "Thanks for all you do!"
