ABOUT THE FILM

"TEA PARTY: The Documentary Film" follows the struggles of five grassroots individuals and their transformation from home town rally goers and rally organizers to national activists in the 912 March on Washington. In the process, the film reveals what is at the heart of this nationwide surge of civic engagement - a return to and respect for a Constitutionally limited government, personal responsibility and fiscal restraint at the Federal level.

GOALS FOR THE FILM

The film seeks to further the conversation about the principles of the movement among tea party activists and provide a compelling means to share the story with those on the outside who are looking to understand its true nature.

THE CHARACTERS IN THE FILM

Nate - Young, Libertarian black man from Detroit, Michigan who voted for Barack Obama. He now opposes the Administration's policies.

Jack - Middle age father of two, little league baseball coach, health insurance agent. He is a Democrat turned Constitutionalist and the brother of a Vietnam soldier.

Jenny Beth - Wife and mother who lost a multi-million dollar business and was forced into bankruptcy and home foreclosure. She now leads tea party activists through Tea Party Patriots, an organization she helps lead.

William - A pastor, Revolutionary War re-enactor, painter, poet, Vietnam veteran, former Pentagon and Secret Service employee and a man of the march.

Dr Fred - Respected urologist leading a bevy of doctors to Capitol Hill to fight against government control of healthcare.

Dave - Former fashion model, he is now in med school and a brand new activist.
