Bytes and Sites, Inc. Launches New Holiday Shopping Niche Website That Helps Consumers Find the Best Black Friday Deals

In an effort to keep the masses more readily informed, Bytes and Sites, Inc, one of the web-design industry's most dexterous outfits, has launched a new catch-all site for the very best in holiday bargains. Already available for perusal, www.thanksgivingblackfridayads.com monitors a great number of major retailers, and is updated consistently, as vendors continue to leak Black Friday advertisements on the web. With this new endeavor, "Thanksgiving Black Friday Ads" has you covered, monitoring all of the major retailers.

"Thanksgiving Black Friday Ads is sincerely devoted to alerting the public of any leaked ads as soon as they become available," says Bytes and Sites founder Scott Offord. "We're very intent on informing shoppers of the sales prices offered on Black Friday and where to find them online several days prior to the big sales events."

"We monitor the web sites of Walmart, Apple, Kmart, Sears, Target, BestBuy, and many others, and post the Black Friday sales on our website."

So, a shrewd-shopping Mommy or Daddy, in search of the perfect laptop for their college-bound teen, need only turn to www.thanksgivingblackfridayads.com to quickly and easily find the best available Black Friday deals from Dell, Apple, and Best Buy.

Thanksgiving Black Friday Ads is sure to become a necessary tool for all those serious about finding the most efficient way to the biggest savings. Visitors to the site are also privy to special coupons from these retailers that can only be found online, rather than the traditional newspaper advertisement, and are also able to sign-up to receive e-mail alerts whenever new information becomes available through the site.

In addition to on-site updates, signing up for these alerts will also provide shoppers access to the "Black Friday Shopping Guide," which will mean additional savings in time, as well as money. Says Offord, "In addition to Black Friday deals, some retailers will offer special online Black Friday coupons, including special code numbers, which we also share with visitors on our website." Obviously, this news is quite advantageous at a time of year when it is all too easy to get lost, or bamboozled, while scavenging over-crowded malls and outlet villages.

Bytes and Sites is a versatile web-design company with experience in all facets of the process, from implementing Content Management Systems, to Flash website design and E-commerce.
