

Every day, thousands of documents of increasing variety circulate around us. The new technologies applied to office environments allow companies to manage the entire document cycle, from design, generation and distribution, to capture, archiving and retrieval. Automated business processes allow enterprises and organizations to maximally optimize their operations.

The advantages of having high-quality documents immediately at your disposal, for immediate use or for future consultations, requirements that today's enterprises demand from their software providers. Invoices or delivery notes easily get lost in large companies. Being able to count on software that allows administrative processes to continue, and with the original image of the document, is indispensable to any enterprise.

DocPath offers complete products and solutions, designed to cover all documentation requirements. Marketed on diverse platforms, Docpath provides a wide variety of output formats for a wide variety of environments. The modular, scalable and integrated software covers the entire document life cycle. No matter the size of the company, whether it's a large enterprise, an SMB, etc., DocPath permits enterprises to maintain their existing applications and manage the entire document life cycle with just a simple installation of its products and solutions.

The Company

From its beginnings in 1992, DocPath has been focused on providing global solutions that allow its clients to improve their management of the document life cycle. As a result, numerous clients have already implemented DocPath's products and solutions. Its clients range from recognized prestigious banks and insurance companies to distribution enterprises, for which DocPath facilitates the difficult and complex work of designing, generating and distributing their business critical documents.
