Capital Safety Opens Warehouse in Southern California

RED WING, Minn. — January 5, 2010 — Capital Safety, home of the DBI-SALA and PROTECTA brands, today announces the opening of a new warehouse in southern California. The new distribution hub enables Capital Safety to dramatically improve services to the West Coast by reducing transportation costs, improving shipping times and introducing a will-call option.

“The new warehouse enables us to deliver products quickly, or make them available for pick up, to better serve our authorized Capital Safety distributors and their customers who have an urgent need for fall protection equipment,” says Kevin Coplan, vice president of sales for Capital Safety. “After searching for the perfect warehouse location, I believe we found it. This facility is very easy to get to and it brings our industry-leading fall protection products closer to our West Coast customers.”

Capital Safety’s new warehouse will stock some of the most popular DBI-SALA and PROTECTA brand products, making them available for same-day delivery in the region or will-call pick up, and for one-day deliveries to most parts of the western U.S. Located at 2340 S. Eastern Avenue, Commerce, CA 90040, the warehouse is easily accessible from two major freeways. The warehouse also features elevated loading docks, making it easier for customers to pull up to the warehouse and load the products directly into trucks.
