

Modera attends the exclusive CIO Summit 2010

Software company Modera attends CIO Summit Europe 2010, the prestigious IT conference

Tuesday, 23 February 2010, London, UK ---- Content management software company Modera <http://www.moderacom.com> attends the CIO Summit Europe 2010 <http://www.ciosummiteu.com>, the event for senior level business and IT executives.

The IT conference held in Bremen, Germany at The Park Hotel from Tuesday, 23rd to Thursday, 25th February 2010 is renowned as the premier event for global CIOs to meet and discuss wide ranging developments with peers. Also known as the CIOEU Summit 2010, the event is a must attend calendar date for senior business and information technology professionals.

The CIO Summit selects the respected CIO executives throughout Europe through its advisory board GDS; with its exclusive partners IDC it invites attendees for the top global organisations.

Siim Vips, CEO at Modera comments, "CIO Summit Europe 2010 is prestigious event and allows Modera to meet more of its peers at an amazing venue in within a relaxed environment. At the Bremen summit we are able debate the impact that IT and the current financial climate is having upon our industry. We can discuss the influences that have been experienced across all areas of business sharing our expertise on what it has meant for various sectors.

With a great number of meetings, panels, roundtables and one-to-one workshops, Modera is able to continue sharing the knowledge it is developing in the information management industry."

Modera will be delivering a whitepaper for CIO Summit 2010 for attendees and peers to download entitled "Managing information in the digital multiverse", available at the Modera website after the event.

The Modera team headed out to the conference a day before the event, with interested parties being able follow the software specialist on Twitter <http://twitter.com/Modera> or @Modera leading up to, during and post event for the latest developments, including the availability of the whitepaper.
