AVG Anti-Virus and Walling Data Win Top Recommendation from IT Consultant

Price, service and performance add up to total package for Atiba consultant

Nashville, TN – May 27, 2010 – Jeremy Light is an IT Consultant at Atiba Software, a Nashville company that specializes in web design, networks and programming. He is constantly doling out recommendations to his customers on everything from e-mail clients to content management systems to anti-virus software.

“When it comes to protection against viruses, malware and SPAM, I always recommend AVG Anti-Virus.”

He explains, “AVG wins in price, ease-of-use and is the most all-encompassing solution I’ve come across. I’ve used other products and what I’ve found over and over again with McAfee and Symantec is that you have to piecemeal them together to get the all-encompassing, seamless protection offered by AVG.”

Light says that AVG costs 30% less than other popular anti-virus products, and has a comprehensive central management suite that guards e-mail, file servers and workstations from threats.

He adds, “I can either push the software out from a central server to all workstations linked up on the network or can write custom program scripts that can take care of the installation/setup.”

Light even uses AVG Anti-Virus Free Edition on his personal computer.

Low Prices, Great Service = A Great Combination

When purchasing licenses, Light makes the purchases with Walling Data.

“Walling Data offers the same price that AVG Anti-Virus lists on their corporate website, without any markup. Plus, they offer free and unlimited technical support via phone and e-mail. The combination of price and service at Walling is unbeatable.”

“Even though I work in IT doesn't mean I understand every product, everywhere, all the time. It's much easier to deal with a company, like Walling Data, that has a knowledgeable support staff that can troubleshoot any issue I may run into. It is comforting to know they are only a quick phone call away.”

Light has recommended AVG Anti-Virus products to several clients including Werthan Tile, the Nashville Chamber of Commerce, Carter-Haston Real Estate Services, Crownover Tisinger, PC, BH1, Browning Gordon and Co. and Tanner Corporate Services.

“I would recommend AVG Anti-Virus and Walling Data to everyone.”
