

“That land is a community is the basic concept of ecology, but that land is to be loved and respected is an extension of ethics.”

-Aldo Leopold, A Sand County Almanac

This book contains 160 no/low-cost green philanthropy ideas for families, individuals, and groups. You can choose to begin in your own home or in your own backyard or with a gift, action, activity or project that involves community or global outreach.

Wherever you decide to start, there are green philanthropy ideas appropriate for everyone in your family or group. Some are specifically geared toward youth or adults, but most can involve all ages.

A single random act of green philanthropy may not seem significant alone, but when it’s multiplied tens of thousands or a million times over it brings big results, saving: small farms, urban habitats, parks and refuges, organic foods, community gardens, native and heirloom seeds, wild places, wildlife, the ancient mountains of Appalachia, forests and rainforests, rivers, lakes, and streams and more. To share your own green philanthropy ideas, visit:

www.greenphilanthropyforfamilies.org

