

Amy J. Roloff
She may be little,
but is living life
LARGE!

Amy is a working mom, invested in balancing the various aspects of her life—including filming the TLC television show, Little People, Big World. She has been married for 22 years to Matt Roloff, and together they have four energetic children. Amy has served her Oregon community in many ways including preschool teacher, soccer coach, school board member and parade Grand Marshall. Amy and her family are currently filming the sixth season of their show, Little People Big World. When she gets a break from her busy schedule, Amy works on her golf game, spends time with her family and donates her service to the DAAA and LPA (Little People of America, Inc.). She further serves her community by advocating for those with disabilities, students, organizations, businesses and non-profits that inspire others to reach their potential in spite of challenges and obstacles.

The Amy Roloff Charity Foundation was created in 2009 to support, enrich, impact and assist individuals in reaching their greatest potential in their overall life experience Through fund raising and partnering with other charities who share our vision, we create new opportunities for these individuals through financial assistance, sports activities and education.

A little help can make a BIG DIFFERENCE!
