Interview with Ann Smarty of MyBlogGuest.com \(Ann Smarty of MyBlogGuest Talks Guest Blogging Tips and Benefits\)

"MyBlogGuest is a site that makes it easy for blog owners and blog writers to find each other so both parties can leverage the benefits of guest blogging.

It's absolutely true that guest blogging can benefit both blog owners and blog writers, and MyBlogGuest offers a unique opportunity that until now has been hard to find. In other words, without MyBlogGuest, blog owners and blog writers had to conduct random Google searches to find each other. MyBlogGuest is an invaluable resource in that it allows you to eliminate the time-intensive search process and jump right to the process of connecting with other bloggers who are actively interested in guest blogging opportunities."

"My Blog Guest is a unique community that is based on one simple principle: if you provide quality, you don't need to pay to be heard. It unites bloggers who are interested in connecting to other bloggers, journalists and other content creators in any niche and publish their high-quality articles on their blogs."

Guest Posts: Are You Writing Them? Are You Accepting Them?

"After 10 years of blogging on the same topic, I'm relieved by the prospect of guest bloggers adding good content to my blog. Now I'm off to come up with a post of my own that some other blogger will want to publish. To promote a post free at MyBlogGuest, describe it in the forums. For a pro account at $10 a month, users can enter any post to pitch and it would show up in the Articles Gallery. I don't plan to do that, but will try out the free method via the forums.

The whole prospect is kind of invigorating. "

Guest blogging II blog promotion strategy finally getting the tools it needs

"With guest blogging spreading around the blogosphere as more authors started to realize its great benefits, a need was created for this strategy to be aided. It started with tips and tricks and success stories that we've all seen on the Internet. Blog authors have started publishing dedicated pages for guest blogging, inviting new authors in. But it's now moving past advice and a new tool to help those welcoming guest bloggers and those looking for a new outlet get in touch easier has been launched: My Blog Guest.

The process is simple and straightforward.

Blog authors looking for new perspectives being presented to their readers sign up and tell the world they welcome guests. Those wanting to publish guest post browse the available sites and when they find one they like, they contact the author, letting them know of their intentions and sending some work samples (which can basically be a link to their own blog or other guest posts). Sounds simple and practical, doesn't it?"

Free Guest Blogging Exchange -Nice!

"Ann has created an online community to bring together bloggers who are looking for guest posts, and people who are interested in writing guest posts. You can search by category, tag, topic and specific offers..."

It's free, it's super fast to get signed up, and within minutes you'll be able to browse opportunities for fresh blog content – or for guest blogging opportunities.

"This website aims to make everything stand clearer as it aims to connect these bloggers wanting to promote what they can do with bloggers who are looking for quality content.

In that way, any blogger who has a distinctive voice that just needs that little more outreach can find related weblogs in his niche and start gaining exposure. This service is provided at no cost whatsoever, and upon joining in you can begin making connections, whatever side of the equation you are on.

MyBlogGuest, then, acts as a true pathway that can bring bloggers who need reputable content and the ones who can provide it into an adjacent position. They are both placed in a context that is mutually beneficial, too, as one side gains exposure while the other has ready access to content that is always above-average."
