New PADACS iPad case comes with built-in keyboard

International iPad accessories brand PADACS today announces the Toccata, a stylish iPad case that offers the convenience of a built-in Bluetooth keyboard.

Costing just US$69.95, the PADACS Toccata Bluetooth Keyboard Case is the ideal accessory for the heavy duty iPad user: Its protective case has an integrated Bluetooth keyboard that makes it easy for iPad users to type emails and play games or just avoid using the iPad's touchscreen keyboard.

The Toccata's 9.25 X 5.31in QWERTY keyboard is large enough to type comfortably without adding to the iPad case size. Charged by an included USB cable, the Lithium battery-powered keyboard runs for as long as 45 hours.

As well as the iPad, the Bluetooth 2.0 keyboard works with a range of devices including iPhone 4 and iPhone 3GS (with iOS4) and Bluetooth-enabled devices running Windows, Mac or Linux.

PADACS products are available from www.padacs.com. As a limited-time incentive, PADACS is offering free shipping for its US customers to celebrate the launch of PADACS in North America.

PADACS founder Raaj Menon said the Toccata Bluetooth Keyboard Case both looked good and worked well. "The case's modern design combines a professional look with great functionality at an affordable price," he said.

"You can fold the case into the laptop position to use the keyboard, angling the iPad screen for ideal viewing, or fold the keyboard back out of sight when you don't need it. Its sturdy construction protects your iPad while magnets on the front cover keep the case closed when you're not using the iPad."

The Toccata Bluetooth Keyboard Case is compatible with Windows, Mac, Linux and Apple iOS4. The keyboard pairs easily with devices, going into auto-sleep mode after 10 minutes of inactivity and automatically reconnecting when it is switched on.

Its built-in 450mAh Lithium battery lasts for as long as 45 hours per charge with continuous standby for 100 days. Running on the ISM 2402-2480MHz band, the keyboard has a 30ft operating distance.

PADACS offers a wide range of high quality, low-cost products that allow iPhone 4 and iPad users to get even more value from their devices. Other recent PADACS releases for the iPad/iPhone include:

- Aksent High-Definition In-Ear Earphones (US$49.95) for the iPhone and iPad, offering easily-reached controls and foam ear cushions that mould to the ear canal
- UltraCharge (US$99.95), a portable power supply unit for the iPad, iPhone 4 and 98 per cent of current mobile devices.

For the curious, Toccata is from the Italian word toccare "to touch", describing a composition for the piano, organ or other keyboard instrument that's intended to show off the player's technique.
