Website helps web and graphic designers find affordable creative tools and applications

Vancouver, Canada – Webdesigner Depot, a popular blog for web designers and other creative professionals, has announced the upcoming November launch of a new website that will provide discount opportunities on various creative design products and services.

On MightyDeals.com, sellers and merchants can run 24-hour specials on products and services such as applications, WordPress themes, templates and fonts, among many others. The site will serve as a place for designers to find the best deals and for businesses to reach new customers.

“These deals will be dirt-cheap and allow web professionals to get the latest tools at great prices,” said Walter Apai, founder of MightyDeals.com. “It will serve as a tremendous resource for creative pros, especially those who have been hit hard by the economic recession and are struggling to keep up with the rising costs of the latest design tools and applications.”

Web designers and graphic designers looking to find great deals on these products and services can sign up for the company’s email alerts. When a deal becomes available, they will automatically be notified. The site requires no registration or membership fee, and access to its “daily deals” is free for all users.

For businesses, the website offers an opportunity to gain exposure, boost sales and reach out to thousands of new customers. Due to the popularity of its sister site, Webdesigner Depot, MightyDeals.com will already attract thousands of creative professionals from around the world.
