

GET 20%
OFF

WHEN YOU SUBSCRIBE TODAY

* Offer ends
November
30th

Consumer video communications is a hot new market where vendors leverage technologies first introduced as enterprise telepresence products and services, but in packages and at price points scaled much smaller. Implications, market segmentation and demand curves need to inform product managers, advertising managers executives and retail strategists. Brockmann & Company designed this annual subscription service to focus on this opportunity.

Network Drivers presents an analysis that reviews how choice of Internet access affects propensity to purchase.

Gender in Decisions?  considers how gender affects decisions about home video communications.

Segmentation and Likely Buyers presents a segmentation model and reviews the fundamentals of why buyers will buy.

What Will It Take To Win? is the first comprehensive report on the consumer video communications market requirements.

“Insight on the consumer video experience provides a way to learn what it will take to win, in this rapidly competitive market and this subscription series go a long towards that goal.”

Visit www.brockmann.com/subscriptions TODAY to learn more and begin your subscription. You can charge the annual subscription service fee at the discounted rate of $3,240* to any credit card or use your PayPal account for secure payment.

* Offer expires November 30, 2010.

 Report titles and actual content are subject to change without notice.