Metaverse Mod Squad Announces Opening of New York Office
Work Space in Brooklyn to Service Agencies, Publishers, Developers, and Brands

- Metaverse Mod Squad announced today the opening of its new office in Brooklyn, New York, which will service the company's expanding customer base of New York agencies, publishers, developers and brands.
- Located at 62 Water Street in Brooklyn's tech-friendly DUMBO neighborhood (Down Under the Manhattan Bridge Overpass), Metaverse joins the ranks of Etsy, Big Spaceship, Brooklyn Games, and Ning, all with presences in the area. Companies like Tierra Innovation, Digital Gravel, Fusia Communications, Red Herring Design, Free Association, Domani Studios, and The Joey Company have offices in DUMBO as well.
- The leading provider of moderation, customer support, community development, and social media management services, Metaverse opened its Brooklyn office to complement its 24/7 operations center in Sacramento, California and its teams of remote staffers.
- "The timing is right for us to expand our physical presence to the media, financial and advertising capital of the world," said Amy Pritchard, Metaverse CEO. "The new office gives us a stronger connection with our existing customers and partners in New York and helps us expand our marketing reach to other East Coast brands."
- Metaverse customers in New York include the NFL, Harper Collins, 4mm Games, Tierra Innovation, and comiXology. The company is also a frequent sponsor of the annual Engage! Conference in New York, which is co-located with the American International Toy Fair.
