Personal Injury Attorney, Mark C. Blane, Signs Publishing Deal With CelebrityPress To Release “A Wolf In Sheep’s Clothing”

Mark C. Blane, legal author and personal injury lawyer, has recently signed a publishing deal with business and marketing book publisher CelebrityPress, along with other leading attorneys from across the nation to release the legal guide, “A Wolf In Sheep’s Clothing.”

Orlando, Fla. – October 29, 2010 – Mark C. Blane, legal author and personal injury attorney, has joined with noted attorney and legal marketing expert, Ben Glass and a select group of America’s leading attorneys to co-write the forthcoming book titled, “A Wolf In Sheep’s Clothing: What Your Insurance Company Doesn’t Want You To Know And Won’t Tell You Until It’s Too Late.” Nick Nanton, Esq. along with business partner, JW Dicks, Esq., recently signed a publishing deal with each of these authors to contribute their expertise to the book, which will be released under their CelebrityPress™ label.

Attorney Mark C. Blane recognized early in his career that he wanted to represent ordinary people instead of corporate interests. By practicing personal injury law, he is able to combine his two passions: law and human anatomy science. He further understands that not every injury case will need a lawyer, but every injury case, no matter how minor, should be discussed with good legal counsel. The initial consult he provides is always without charge, and he works exclusively on a contingency fee basis with all of his cases. This means if he accepts and works on an injury case, he only charges a fee when he successfully resolves the case; otherwise there is no charge for his legal services. Thus, there is no financial risk to the client.

The forthcoming book, “A Wolf in Sheep’s Clothing: What Your Insurance Company Doesn’t Want You To Know And Won’t Tell You Until It’s Too Late” will focus on the legal intricacies of dealing with insurance companies, and why having an attorney who understands insurance companies is imperative for all.

About Mark C. Blane:

Attorney Mark C. Blane is a solo-practicing attorney and legal author that specializes in the area of personal injury law in San Diego, California. He has been admitted to the California State bar since June 1999. He attended and graduated law school at Thomas Jefferson School of Law in San Diego in December 1998. He has also been admitted to the Minnesota and Texas State Bars, in addition to various Federal Courts across the United States. Through the years, he has been involved in some well-known Mass Tort litigation cases. A few of these cases include the Ford/Firestone tire defect roll-over cases, and the once popular diet drugs Fen-Phen and Metabolife Class Actions. Mr. Blane represents people in Southern California who have been injured by the negligence of others due to defective products, automobile/motorcycle accidents, slip and falls, and other various accidents that have caused catastrophic loss. He finds himself against some of the largest insurance companies across the United States, in addition to some of the most respectful defense law firms in California.

His law office is primarily comprised of a team of paralegals, and one Of Counsel attorney member. He likes keeping his legal team small and approachable; he makes sure his clients get his personal attention. In fact, when you become a client with his law firm, you meet with Mr. Blane directly; he never delegates a first meeting to an associate or paralegal team member. Since all of his clients have been injured in some way, he is extremely proactive in documenting the medical care each client receives. This is extremely important as he knows how most insurance companies utilize a computer software program to ascertain case value on a given injury. He talks about this process in his free legal guide the Ten Secrets You Need To Know About Regarding Your Injury Case, BEFORE You Call A Lawyer, available for free on his website, blanelaw.com.

Mr. Blane and his legal staff speak Spanish, and his law offices are located in downtown San Diego. He can be reached Toll Free at (888) 845-6269, direct at (619) 813-7955, or by email at mark@blanelaw.com. You can also find him on the web at <http://www.blanelaw.com>
