

WHERE GREAT LEADERS BEGIN

July 17-23, 2011 • Scarritt-Bennett Center • Nashville, Tennessee

MANAGING OURSELVES WHERE GREAT LEADERS BEGIN

Immersion in a working organization of their own making. 16- and 17-year old high school students will have the opportunity to immerse themselves in experiential management during an intensive one-week summer conference, scheduled for July 17-23, 2011 at the Scarritt-Bennett Center in Nashville, Tennessee. Organized by experiential learning leader Dr. John Miller, the residential conference will provide students hands-on practice in developing and managing a working organization and insights into the primary drivers of organizational performance. The competitive admission program will provide an excellent chance for students to challenge their teamwork and leadership skills, strengthen their understanding of how successful organizations work and learn about academic and career paths that match their talents.

Guest speakers will include Jeffrey R. Cornwall, DBA, Jack C. Massey Chair in Entrepreneurship at Belmont University, named a Top 5 undergraduate entrepreneurship destination by Fortune.

Application and Admission

Conference admissions will be competitive and on a first-come, first-served basis. Join other youth leaders and scholars at this unique conference and begin building your understanding of how to manage an organization, a team and yourself. Apply now at ManagingOurselves.com.

AFTER THE CONFERENCE

Inclusion in a Collaborative Network of Business Leaders

Conference attendees will enjoy an exclusive opportunity to participate, free of charge, in an online community of business leaders who studied with Dr. Miller during his 30 year academic career as well as students who participate in future "Managing Ourselves" conferences. The community will provide an exceptional place of informal learning as students and alums share case studies, ask and answer questions and meet for an occasional networking event in select major cities.

John Miller, Ph.D., now Professor Emeritus at Bucknell University, was Christian R. Lindback Professor of Management until his retirement in 2005. He was visiting professor at École Supérieure de Commerce du Centre in Tours, France and at Doshisha University in Kyoto, Japan; and Director of Admissions at Yale University's School of Organization and Management.

Miller served as Academic Director of the National Urban Fellows programs at Yale and Bucknell. He is a Fellow of the Carnegie Academy for the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning.

Miller holds an A.B. in Economics (with honors) from Stanford University, a Diplom—Certificate in German Studies from the University of Munich, an MBA from INSEAD (European Institute of Business Administration, Fontainebleau, France) and a Ph.D. in Management from the University of Rochester.

The Journal of Management Education, Newsweek, BusinessWeek and The Chronicle of Higher Education have featured Miller's experiential learning model, which is in use at dozens of institutions of higher education including the Wharton School, Babson College, the University of Oklahoma and Bucknell University, in the wildly popular experiential management class that Miller developed some 30 years ago.

