Anthem Education Group Names James Hutton, PhD, as CEO

PHOENIX, ARIZONA, April 5, 2011—Anthem Education Group (AEG) announces the appointment of James Hutton, PhD, as Chancellor and CEO.

Dr. Hutton has served as AEG's Executive Chairman of the Board since January 2008. He brings a solid background working with and improving the quality of private sector college and university education since 1988. Previously, he served as Vice Chairman for Education Corporation of America, which he also co-founded, and as CEO for Virginia College. He served as a Commissioner for the Accrediting Council for Independent Colleges and Schools (ACICS) and as Board Chair in 2006.

He presently serves on the Board of Directors for the Association of Private Sector Colleges and Universities (APSCU).

Dr. Hutton earned a PhD in Health Services Administration and an MBA from the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

"I am honored to assume the CEO and Chancellor role at AEG and continue to be a part of the Anthem Advantage for our students, team members, employers, and the communities we serve," Hutton said in a statement. "Our vision continues to be the most trusted provider of post-secondary education and training in the world and our goal to be the school employers call first."
