NurseTogether.com and PutMeBackTogether.com Form Exclusive Partnership with Care2Learn to Offer Online Continuing Education for Nursing and Therapy Professionals

NurseTogether.com, one of the fastest growing free online communities for nursing professionals, and companion site PutMeBackTogether.com, an online community for allied health professionals, form exclusive partnership with web-based healthcare CE leader Care2Learn to provide members of both sites access to broad range of education benefits, including a fully stocked online university created by Care2Learn.

Charlotte, NC — NurseTogether.com and PutMeBackTogether.com, two sites forming one of the largest online information networks for nursing and therapy professionals, recently announced that they will now feature a customized online university through which healthcare professionals can take courses to fulfill their CEU requirements and professional certification needs. Through this exclusive partnership, Care2Learn, Inc., the leader in online nursing CEUs and training for post-acute care professionals, will provide members of both sites access to broad range of education benefits, including a fully stocked online university.

“We’re extremely pleased to be working with Care2Learn to bring their top-rated CE courses to our rapidly growing membership base for both NurseTogether.com and PutMeBackTogether.com. Care2Learn understands the continuing education needs of today’s healthcare professionals, and their wide range of accredited courses delivered in convenient and cost-effective formats supports our mission of empowering nurses and therapy professionals with the highest-quality content, career tools and value-added services,” said Steve Curtin, Vice President of Content for NurseTogether.com and PutMeBackTogether.com.

“We’re really excited to partner with NurseTogether.com and PutMeBackTogether.com in providing relevant news and exceptional-quality online education for nursing and therapy professionals,” said Care2Learn Marketing VP Vicki Zambito. “Through our combined strengths and experience we’re able to offer members a complete professional resource unlike any other in the industry. And because Care2Learn is continually expanding our course library and incorporating current eLearning technology, there will always be something new.”

NurseTogether.com and PutMeBackTogether.com were founded with a single goal in mind: to empower the global community of nurses and allied health professionals with helpful information through a single, easy-to-use website. Each site will soon feature a customized online university where members can enjoy quick and easy access to Care2Learn’s complete library of courses and services focusing on infection control, ethics for nurses, physical and occupational therapy, stroke rehabilitation, and more.

Care2Learn’s award-winning web-based learning platform gives students the flexibility to learn at their own pace in order to fulfill their CE and certification needs.
