Renaissance Newark Airport Hotel Completes Multi-Million Dollar Renovation

Newark Airport hotel unveils significant changes to rooms, including additional space, sound-resistant treating and improved air conditioning.

Elizabeth, NJ - General Manager Jeff Plamondon today presented the newly transformed Renaissance Newark Airport Hotel, capping off a multi-million dollar renovation project which took several months to complete. This luxury Newark hotel underwent significant changes and has now positioned itself amongst the leading Newark Airport hotels.

According to Mr. Plamondon, the renovation was both structural and cosmetic and included working with sound engineers to replace every window in the hotel to make it sound-resistant; installing a four-pipe system to enable guests to use heating or air conditioning no matter what time of year; and reconfiguring the guest room footprints to add two additional feet to each room.

Additionally, this Newark, NJ hotel was completely transformed from a design perspective to create an environment that represents the distinctive and stylish ambiance of the Renaissance brand. The guest rooms, lobby, restaurants, lounges, meeting space, fitness center, swimming pool and Club Lounge were all entirely redone in a bid to provide travelers to New York City and the New Jersey area with a sophisticated and urban hotel experience. The hotel now offers the newest guest rooms and newest, largest and most flexible meeting and event space in the Newark, NJ area.

The hotel's restaurant, the Ironbound Grill, also features an exciting new menu which offers cuisine native to the ethnic groups represented in the local community—Italian, Spanish, and Portuguese—as well as unique breads from area bakeries in keeping with the Renaissance brand's goal of capturing the flavor of the hotel's local surroundings.
