Tools4ever releases a new version of SSRPM

The latest release adds SMS authentication as conduit for password resets, enhanced email authentication configuration and updated challenge questions

Seattle, WA, June 28, 2011 – Tools4ever, the market leader in Identity and Access Management solutions, has introduced a new version of Self Service Reset Password Management (SSRPM). Most notable in the latest release is SSRPM now enables SMS authentication as a vehicle in the password reset process. When enabled, SSRPM will require the user to provide a mobile phone number during the enrollment process to which SSRPM will send an SMS containing a PIN code, which the user will need to enter during the password reset.

Tom Mowatt, Managing Director of Tools4ever - Seattle had this to say about the latest SSRPM release; "The addition of SMS authentication in SSRPM further exemplifies Tools4ever's commitment to providing robust identity and access management solutions. By now allowing a PIN code sent to a user's mobile phone number we are providing customers with the added feature for a fast, user-enabled password reset solution."

Also added to the latest SSRPM release, SSRPM will include an extra setting to the e-mail authentication configuration. It is now possible to configure e-mail authentication to allow users, whose e-mail addresses are unknown to SSRPM, to reset their passwords using their current enrollment data.

The third feature update in this release includes updated default challenge questions. New implementations will included these updated questions, while existing installations can get the new questions by adding the default SSRPM configuration to the database.
