RENTCHIMP A Facebook-connected site, RentChimp makes it extremely easy to find apartments to rent just anywhere you are situated, or anywhere you are planning to move into in the near future. And the one truly remarkable aspect of the whole application is that since Facebook is used to authenticate who you are, then you are enabled to bring your whole social graph along for the ride. All your friends will be able to tell you what they think about any apartment that you are considering renting. And by being able to weigh the pros and cons of it in such a social way, you are ultimately being enabled to make much sounder decisions.

Other than that, all the obvious features that apartment search websites always have are included here - you are enabled to save all the flats that look interesting, and have them compared side to side at a later date. Plus, you can set down automated alerts when any apartment that suits your specific criteria becomes available, so that you are saved the hassle of doing manual searches over and over again.
