
The Rare and the Rarified. David Lackey Antiques & Art, exhibiting a new collection.

David Lackey needs no introduction. The Houston antiquarian and appraiser on the Emmy-nominated 'Antiques Roadshow' established his reputation as one of Houston's premier dealers long ago. But don't expect him to rest on his laurels: Lackey recently moved his shop to a new location which features a new and fascinating collection.

Houston, TX (PR-WIRE) April 29, 2011 -- David Lackey, owner of David Lackey Antiques and Art in Houston, recently opened a new location at Houston's Antiques of River Oaks, center (3461 W. Alabama Houston, TX 77027), and is exhibiting a new and fascinating collection at his shop. Among the newly arrived items, you can find:

“ You never know what you'll find ”

- A mid 20th century drawing by noted Texas outsider artist, Frank Jones (1900-1969), priced at $5000. (Two similar Frank Jones drawings are currently hanging in the Menil Museum exhibit, Seeing Stars: Visionary Art from the Collection).
- An excellent group of 18th century Spanish items from a local estate, including a primitive cabinet, paintings, santos figures, panels, etc.
- A circa 1810 American bow front chest from Delaware priced at $10,950.
- A rare 100 piece set of Kirk Repousse sterling silver flatware priced at $5000.

But one can still find the quirky and affordable mixed in kaleidoscopic fashion with fine 18th and 19th century furniture and art. Lackey's customers include nationally-known interior designers who appreciate the diversity and affordability of his goods.
