EcoDomo

Your partner for quality sustainable recycled leather and cork for floors, walls and more.

Founded in response to the need for luxurious, well-designed materials derived from renewable and ecologically-friendly sources, EcoDomo has become the partner of choice to both architects and designers, as purveyors of unique recycled materials and brilliant solutions, elegant design and ecologically-balanced living.

Using new recycling and advanced manufacturing techniques, EcoDomo leather and cork products have become the industry standard: materials that are renewable, abundant, hard-wearing, and able to assume a myriad of personalities by their ability to take on colors and finishes. Our recycled leather, for example, is so durable it can be found on hotel floors.

EcoDomo has achieved installations worldwide. Our products can be seen in numerous hospitality, casino, retail, corporate & medical facilities on floors, furniture, walls, and ceilings. In private homes, EcoDomo products are used in every dry area. In each application, ingenuity has combined with technology and an elegant design sensibility to create fully-customized cork and leather libraries, media rooms, stairs, walls, powder rooms and more.

As a member of the United States Green Building Council USGBC, EcoDomo uses a “triple bottom line” approach, where products must exceed market expectations and significantly contribute to both the environment and to the community.

Our recycled leathers have been featured on multiple networks for their novelty such as CNN, HGTV, and Rachel Ray television shows, and have been editorialized in magazines including Southern Living, Cooking Light, Natural Home and Metropolis.

EcoDomo is located in Rockville, Maryland, where it is supported by a select team of sales representatives and authorized dealers.
