

Iris Data Services Opens Production Office in San Francisco Leading Electronic Discovery Company Adds Bay City Litigation Support Operations

SAN FRANCISCO, November 14, 2011 — Iris Data Services, a leading provider of discovery solutions, announced today that it has opened a new production facility in San Francisco at 225 Bush Street, Suite 340, San Francisco, CA 94104, (415) 671-8965. This is a full service litigation support office that offers complete paper imaging and copying as well as electronic discovery processing and computer forensics. Iris Data Services is a leading supplier of discovery solutions including electronic discovery, computer forensics, attorney document review, and online hosting.

The new Iris office and data center sits on a fully redundant power grid, employs generator backup, and has digital video surveillance as well as manned security 24 hours a day, 365 days per year. Iris operates 100Mbps of daily redundant bandwidth provided by two separate ISPs.

“Our new production facility is at the heart of the San Francisco legal community,” said Damon Goduto, Iris’ Vice President of Sales. “We are neighbors to many downtown law firms and Iris will be able to provide extremely fast turn around times on their projects. We have the capability to locally process over 1TB of native documents per day and TIFF one million pages every 24 hours.”

“Our new office in San Francisco continues our company growth in cities where we see law firms and corporate legal departments with growing amounts of complex litigation,” said the president of Iris, Major Baisden. “Offering full discovery services makes it easy for our clients to centralize all aspect of discovery for a particular case while meeting their demanding deadlines.”
