

Your Alarm Now Announces the Release of Cell Backup Power Battery as the new Element of their Home Security Systems

Your Alarm Now adds a new component to their home security systems. The latest improvement allows signals to be sent to security monitoring stations even when telephone lines are cut off. The company has labeled the new element as the Cell Backup Power Battery.

Technology is rapidly improving these days that is why experts go on looking for ways to advance and improve home security systems that are brought out to the market. Your Alarm Now reveals the latest element of security systems products in the market. The company labels it as the Cell Backup Power Battery. Alarm systems that come from Your Alarm Now hold vital apparatus that identify and disturb intruder activities made by unwanted residence visitors. These protection systems defend those who demand security from burglars who aim to suspend protection and safety. These systems are made to shelter businesses, families and homes.

The Cell Backup Power Battery that was added as a new part of home security systems from Your Alarm Now exhibit additional features that will help security monitoring become better for clients. Everyone has a telephone interface box within their homes. Using the older security systems, if the phone lines are cut for some reason, the security systems will not be able to send signals out to the monitoring stations. This event increases the risk for unmonitored burglar attempts or breaks which jeopardize safety and security. The Cell Backup Unit installed in the keypad allows signals to be sent to the stations even when telephone lines are cut.

“Advancements to technology today is becoming really fast. We from Your Alarm Now would like to apply this and take advantage of the newest technologies that are introduced to us by experts. I believe that clients deserve great service and the release of this new element of our home security systems will truly be one good step,” said Mr. Shakuri, a businessman and the owner of Your Alarm Now.

Your Alarm now is an ADT authorized dealer who has been of service to protect families in CANADA and USA.
