

Introduction of Remote Keychain Device from Your Alarm Now Makes Life Easy for Users of Home Security Systems.

The renowned home security systems manufacturer Your Alarm Now has recently made a new addition to its impressive range of security systems. The introduction of an amazingly useful remote keychain device has made them a strong force in the market of home security providers in Canada and United States. The company specializes in providing round the clock protection to the households.

One of the most rapidly growing home security systems providers in the country Your Alarm Now has made one more impressive enhancement to its product range. They have introduced a new device called the remote keychain system. The device resembles a car alarm remote in size, and users can easily carry the device with them. The small device is packed with amazing functional benefits that have been highly appreciated by the users. The complete range of security systems provided by the company consists of other exciting equipment like window and door alarm, motion detectors, loud burglar alarm, etc. All the products offered by the company are approved by ADT.

The remote keychain home security system from Your Alarm Now is perfectly designed for those who want quick access to all the security devices within a reasonable distance from the house. A single push of the button activates or deactivates all the security devices, thanks to this little wonder. Talking about their new development, the company owner Mr. Paul Shakuri said, "It is a proud moment for all of us in Your Alarm Now. This is an amazing device that can control the security systems installed anywhere in your house." The device also has a panic button that enables users to call for emergency help in case situations like a medical emergency or burglary. Mr. Shakuri has also thanked the highly proficient technical team of the company saying, "All these would not have been possible without our strong technical team. I thank them all for their dedication and hard work". Company sources have also revealed that the recent introduction of the remote keychain has resulted in a sharp rise in the business figures in the company. It has also been told that the company plans to introduce many more sophisticated home security devices in the near future.

The importance of home security systems has improved significantly over the last few years along with the rise in crime rate during the post recession economic slowdown. Your Alarm Now is a company that has been delivering home security service that is tailor made for every household in United States and Canada. Home owners can avail round the clock comprehensive protection for only $ 35.99/month with them.

About the Company: Your Alarm Now is an Arizona based home security system manufacturer that provides highly professional security solutions all over the United States and Canada.

Contact:

Paul Shakuri

Phone: 800-599-452.

Website: <http://www.YourAlarmNow.com>