NurseTogether.com Supports Need for Nurse Educators through Free Online Job Postings

Online nursing community recognizes critical need for more nurse educators to support the nursing profession, offers job postings on its professional job board to nursing educational institutions at no charge

Charlotte, NC — NurseTogether.com, one of the fastest-growing free online communities for nursing professionals, today announced that it will now offer nursing-related educational institutions and organizations the ability to post “Nurse Educator” positions on its heavily-trafficked job board at no charge.

Given the critical lack of nurse educators in today’s academic institutions, the nursing profession has suffered from the inability to train enough nursing candidates and post-graduates quickly enough, greatly contributing to the ongoing nursing shortage. By allowing budget-constrained nursing institutions to post nursing educator jobs for free on the job board, NurseTogether.com will help alleviate the shortage by bringing these jobs to thousands of nurses who visit the site every day.

“NurseTogether.com was founded with a single goal in mind: to empower the nursing community with helpful information through a single, easy-to-use website. As NurseTogether.com continues to support educational clients, I wanted to make sure we give back and offer support not only to organizations hiring nurse educators, but to also offer a valuable resource for those searching for nurse educator positions” said Jenny SolCruz, Vice President of Community for NurseTogether.com. “It is a part of our ongoing commitment in supporting the advancement of nurses. It is one thing that we can do to give back.”
