Carson Dunlop Includes Home Reference Book for Home Inspection Clients

Homebuyers benefit from resources to better understand and maintain their home

Toronto, (January 6, 2011) Carson Dunlop announced today that their home buying inspection clients will receive a copy of their Home Reference Book at no additional cost commencing January 6, 2012. This richly illustrated Home Reference Book was written by Carson Dunlop to explain the systems of the home to consumers and home inspection professionals. The Home Reference Book is clear and simple enough for new homeowners, yet comprehensive enough to be a valuable tool for training home inspectors.

“We felt it was important to help our clients better understand their home and the Home Reference Book in combination with our home inspection report provide amazing clarity.” stated Graham Clarke Vice President of Engineering at Carson Dunlop. “A great home inspection is only the beginning. The Home Reference Book together with our free technical advice for as long as our clients own their home ensure we support our clients over the long term.” added Mr. Clarke.

The Home Reference Book, now in its 25th edition, is sold throughout North America at a retail price of $69. For more information about Carson Dunlop home inspections or the Home Reference Book, please visit www.carsondunlop.com
