Elite Security Services has just published a highly informative article discussing different unexplored areas concerning home security systems. The company is a reliable provider of domestic security service in the United States. One may recall that the official blog of the company was released not so far ago. Elite Security Services has been able to build a reputation in the market within a very short time. Their service was launched recently in Canada. The company blog is managed completely by the owner of the company Mr. Paul Shakuri, who is also a respected figure in the American security industry. In this new post, Mr. Shakuri talks about the different aspects of their security packages.

The industry of home security systems has been there since a long time. There was a time when traditional systems were considered to be more reliable because of limitations in the technology of wireless connectivity. However, the articles suggest that today the scenario has changed completely with progress of wireless technology in the recent years. Now most users prefer wireless systems because of their convenience and aesthetic installation. In this discussion, Mr. Shakuri says, "Automatic signals are sent to ADT monitoring stations when the alarm of our system goes off. A message is also delivered to the mobile phone of the homeowner". He also informed in his article that the ADT security systems can't be hacked by the burglars because an alarm is sent whenever the system is switched off suddenly.

Talking about the blog of the company, Mr. Shakuri said, "The objective behind this is to create an online community that plays a part in promoting a crime free society in America and Canada". The blog has gained immense popularity amongst homeowners looking for cost effective home security systems in Canada and the United States. Elite Security Services presently has three top class security packages starting from a fee of $35.99/month only. The systems installed by them are studded with the latest features in the field. Reliable sources have informed that more useful articles are about to be published very soon.
