

Internet Marketing Services Reports that Thousands of Canadian Phone Users May Have to Settle for Windows Phone 7 Instead of their Favorite Nokia N9 Canada.

A recently concluded market research by private research company Internet Marketing Services has indicated that future of Nokia N9 Canada remains to be bleak in this part of the world. The report also suggests that thousands of consumers here may have to satisfy themselves with Windows Phone 7 from Nokia instead of the most popular Smartphone ever made by Nokia.

Things are not at all looking good for thousands of Canadians who have been waiting for months for the release of Nokia N9 Canada. A market research from Internet Marketing Services has revealed that there are very little chances of the phone making its entry to the Canadian market very soon. Their report also reveals that Nokia is far more interested in promoting its first ever Windows Phone 7 in this country than introducing the N9 model. The N9 model is one of the most spectacular phones from Nokia to have hit the market, and it has been a regular topic of discussion in the global telecommunication industry.

The reason behind the reluctance of Nokia to launch the Nokia N9 Canada has been quite difficult to understand. However, Internet Marketing Services hints that this could actually be a part of their strategy to market their Windows Phone 7 device in this country. It may be recalled that major Smartphone markets like Canada and the United States were left out of the list of the companies where the phone released last year. The report suggested that Nokia may have chosen these countries for the launch of the WP 7 device because there is a great demand for iPhones and Androids in these markets.

The market response to the launch of the WP7 device in Canada has been no more than modest so far. On the contrary, the non availability of Nokia N9 Canada has resulted in serious disappointment for most of the phone users in Canada. It must be mentioned here that Nokia N9 has received huge applause in most of the countries where it has been launched. The revolutionary Mee Go operating system and a plethora of fabulous features have resulted in runaway success for this Smartphone. Only future would say if the gadget crazy Canadian would ever be able to enjoy the features of this advanced Smartphone.
